My research interests focus on air pollution (aerosols, NH<sub>3</sub>, NO<sub>x</sub>, SO<sub>2</sub>, etc.), environment changes, and their interactions. Using observational and modeling tools, I analyze the current levels (atmospheric concentrations and deposition fluxes) and causes of air pollution on local, regional and global scales, and their impacts on the environment and human health in the past, at present and in the future. The length ranging review article should show the number

Reviews should be authoritative accessible findings.

Manuscript submissions. SSLA welcomes unsolicited articles, including replication studies; State of the Art articles, review articles, articles in thematic issues, responses, Point and Counterpoint articles, and book reviews are commissioned by the editors. Manuscripts should not have been published previously or be under consideration for publication elsewhere in any form. In addition, SSLA will consider only one submission per author per volume.

Manuscripts undergo a two-tier evaluation process. First, they are read by an in-house committee. If topic and scope are deemed appropriate, they are then sent out for blind review to at least three readers selected from the Editorial Board, Advisory Committee, and other experts in the field. The names of all readers consulted will be listed in the final issue of each volume. A publication decision is usually made within four months of submission (10 to 20 percent of manuscripts submitted are accepted for publication). All manuscripts must be submitted electronically to ssla@indiana.edu. Upon acceptance for external review, authors are then asked to submit one blinded hardcopy and one blinded electronic copy of the manuscript in which all references to the author(s) and their work have been removed.

Submissions

The China Quarterly welcomes the submission of manuscripts from scholars, including postgraduate students, on all aspects of contemporary China, including Taiwan, Hong Kong, Macau and Tibet. Submissions in the fields of religion, media, literature, or on China prior to 1978, will be considered if they engage with issues of wider significance in contemporary China.

The China Quarterly will consider two main types of submissions: regular articles (up to 9,000 words, including footnotes): in-depth and theoretical pieces which should present original research in combination with analytical argument; Research reports (up to 4,000 words, including footnotes): shorter pieces based on primary research and empirical evidence. We will not consider manuscripts that are under consideration elsewhere, or that have been published in any form.

Manuscripts should be submitted to chinaq@soas.ac.uk. The usual reasons for rejection are:

- Insufficient originality
- Serious Scientific Flaws
- Absence of a message that is important to the target audience
- Questionnaire surveys with low response rates
- Articles that are simply descriptive with little attempt at evaluation

If you are sending a revised manuscript back to the journal, you should include a detailed point-by-point explanation of how you have addressed each reviewers' and editors' comments.

Thank you for the constructive criticism of my paper. Here are my comments on the referee's suggestions.

Because we are trying to facilitate timely publication of manuscripts submitted to the Journal of Functional Programming, your revised manuscript should be uploaded as soon as possible. upfront rejection- no literature awareness, messy structure, no readability, no academic value

Dear XXXXXXXX:

I am writing to you in regards to manuscript ***** entitled “xxxxxxxxxxxx”.

As the EIC in charge, I have read your paper twice over the last two days. While I am somewhat familiar with the area (especially the first three references, plus a bit of the fourth one), I will admit that I could barely follow the flow of ideas in your paper. Unlike regular submissions or other pearl submissions, your paper jumps right into the middle of a topic, using difficult to understand notation, and giving only the barest of context. I expect that an EIC with my background should be able to follow a paper in this area with much less effort... Instead of assigning your paper to a Managing Editor, I am therefore taking the liberty to reject your submission immediately. I urge you to read some of the recent theoretical publications in Journal and to compare/contrast with your own submission.

Sincerely,

Editor in Chief

H315/0402
